

The 25th East Japan Intercollegiate English Oratorical Contest, 2011.Extemporaneous Speech Title List

B) Imagine you are in an international conference on environmental issues as a representative of Japan. While you propose a CO2 reduction project, other countries would never agree on the plan. What would you do to tackle this situation?

B) Imagine you are a homeroom teacher at a junior high school and a student with disability is going to join your class as a transfer student. Before having he/she, what would you say to the whole class?

B) Imagine you are a commentator in a morning news show. Pick one current news, clarify a defect of the situation, and suggest a way to improve it.

B) Imagine you are an owner of a convenience store. If you are to start a new service at your store, what would you like to do?

B) Imagine you are the mayor of your hometown. Point out one defect of the city and suggest how to solve it.

B) Imagine you are the president of a university. If you are currently planning a new policy, what would you like to change the most? Clarify one problem and discuss how you can improve the situation with your plan.

B) Imagine you are studying abroad. If a vegetarian animal rights activist asks you why you eat meat, how would you explain?

B) Imagine you are a high school student. If your best friend said that he/she is worthless without any excellence, what would you say to him/her?

B) Imagine you are a travel agent. If a foreign customer asked you to recommend the most beautiful place in Japan, what would you say?

B) Imagine you are a classroom teacher at a high school. If you have noticed that three students in your class were smoking, what would you say to the whole class?

だいぶ古いんですが許してください。いつの世もスピーチの本質にトピックの本質に変わりはありません。